1994 in review

by Jeff Nazzaro

As this round Earth of ours rotates the days into nights and back into days again while orbiting the sun in the 365-day course we gauge the cycles of our human lives by, we are once again reminded that another year is about to pass, bringing us all one step closer to the dawning millennium ... ooooooh!

Events in Wilmington, Massachusetts, 1994, were punctuated by the ultimate end of the human cycle, though both instances bore distinctly different circumstances.

As the year's Labor Day Weekend was coming to a close, the town mourned the loss of 15-year-old Wilmington High School sophomore Shane Warford, who died from injuries sustained when a pick-up truck driven by 16-year-old Wilmington resident Wayne Francis crashed on Federal Street. Francis was charged Sept. 7 with motor vehicle homicide while intoxicated and operating negligently, failure to keep right and excessive speed.

Police Chief Bobby Stewart called Francis the "second victim," saying "he has to live with this for the rest of his life."

Boston print and visual media converged with local scribes and national wire services in early October after police officers Robert Richter and John Bossi together fired seven shots at a Jeep, killing a Malden teenager driving the vehicle after it rammed cruisers and knocked Richter down. While authorities sorted through the incident, the community rallied support for its officers. Deputy Police Chief Bernard Nally noted that "a shooting develops more than one victim."

Richter and Bossi were placed on temporary administrative leave to recover from the events of the shooting and were subsequently cleared of any wrongdoing by the district attorney's office.

In local politics (which stems from the Greek polaritis, meaning "sickly Wilmington School Building Committee voted unanimously to try again. McCoy led that committee's charge, vowing at a Nov. 14 selectmen's meeting to make it his goal to have the Boutwell open in September of 1995.

In between Boutwell campaigns (the present one is just getting under way and will be a hot topic in town in the coming year), Nichols Street area residents were up in arms that their children were told to use their legs along a dangerous route to get to the Shawsheen School. Protests ended when the school committee and finance committee agreed to get a bus for the neighborhood, though the question of who would fund it remained in the air.

The Shhhl ban was off the shelves at Wilmington Memorial Library for '94, with two discrimination cases against Library Director Philip Meriam from 1993 being concluded. The town settled with employee Dorothy Wiberg, offering her a full-time position and paying her legal fees after she complained to the Massachusetts Council Against Discrimination (MCAD) that she was passed up for a promotion because of her age and sex. On April 25, an MCAD complaint filed by Anna Percuoco against Meriam was dismissed for "a lack of probable cause."

Meriam was later suspended by Caira for work-related reasons not connected to the discrimination complaints. That suspension was then upheld following a hearing, after which Meriam was relieved of his duties but allowed to retire on his 65th birthday, Nov. 26.

Development boomed as industrial vacancies - led by International Paper's March purchase of the massive but dormant Sweetheart Plastics warehouse - plummeted and Wilmington prepared to enter the domain of the major fast food burger chain.

On a warm Tuesday evening in July, firefighters from Wilmington and five surrounding communities pumped 2,000 gallons of water per minute, using 620,000 gallons in all, onto a set fire that ravaged the old Wilmington Ford building. This news came nearly on top of the announcement that True Associates, a Dedham-based development firm, was to construct a retail and restaurant strip mall on the site. Though the arson has delayed the process, True Associates indicated in October that, among others, Blockbuster Video, Wendy's, Boston Chicken, Brueger's Bagel Bakeries, Walgreens and an indoor entertainment center were slated for inclusion in the works.

A month earlier, the Town Crier learned that developers had purchased the McNamara Tire site on Main Street, with plans to erect an Osco drugstore. And at the close of September, rumors that local businessman John Forrest was to build a Burger King on a parcel of land on Lowell Street were confirmed. Construction is currently under way on that restaurant, which has been franchised to local resident Bill Frey. Burgers, bagels and video tapes - along with local jobs - all appear to be realities for 1995.

While voters were snuffing an override, they were also reelecting Selectman Robert Cain to a sixth consecutive term. The Town Crier proclaimed "Cain Wins by 35," as the veteran pol led a pack of four separated by a mere 161 votes. Cain edged police sergeant James Rooney by the 35-vote margin, while Tony Capuano finished 98 votes off the pace and Tom Siracusa came in fourth. In what promises to be another close one, Selectman Gerald Duggan sees his seat on the board go up for grabs in '95.

At the state level, Wilmington sent 42 percent of its eligible voters to the polls to choose between Ted or Mitt. Most of them (76 percent) cast a vote for Rep. Jim Miceli as well, who defeated challenger Al Meegan. In what became a nasty race, Meegan ran an advertisement in the Town Crier decrying incumbency as "the cocaine of politics" and pledging he would not become an addict. But residents in Wilmington and Tewksbury (80 percent) just said yes to a seventh Miceli term at the State House.

At April's Annual Town Meeting, developers banged a rusty nail into the conservation commission's bid to enact a local wetlands protection by-law by using a horde of on-call construction workers to hammer the proposal down.

Earlier in the meeting, residents swelled to keep Recreation Director Ron Swasey's job - targeted for dismissal by the finance committee - in tact.

In June, McCoy helped secure a promise for a station and 170 new parking spaces for Wilmington's MBTA commuters, but came up short in his try for a liquor license for Michael's Place, his Lowell Street restaurant.

The station and parking lot, to be located on Main Street across from Middlesex Avenue, was said in June to be on target for the fall of 1995. But McCoy's liquor license, after twice being issued a negative recommendation from the board of health, was downed 2-2 as McCoy stood by with a helpless conflict of interest. Selectmen Diane Allan and Gerald Duggan voted against the license with Chester Bruce and Cain registering in the affirmative.

In the fall, McCoy cornered Allan outside of Town Hall following the school committee-fincom meeting that got the Nichols Street area its bus, accusing her - in shooting down his liquor license with Duggan - of political payback for McCoy's voting with Cain and Bruce to reappoint Caira and Town Counsel Alan Altman.

The confrontation (Allan portrayed as criminal and McCoy as innocent) gave stated, (at least in the case of McCoy) public light to the fact that in most votes concerning town political appointments, Allan and Duggan voted as a bloc, opposing the faction of McCoy, Bruce and Cain, and brought back the tantalizing notion that the board was 35 votes removed from being swung toward the former - with Rooney, whom both Allan and Duggan endorsed, losing to Cain.

McCoy's spin on Allan and Duggan opposing the reappointments of Caira and Altman? The investigation into the water and sewer department, which for years has come back to the town like a harvest moon, and casting just as big a light.

Now, police have concluded their investigations and McCoy has himself set for the last laugh. In any case, the water and sewer department will again make headlines in 1995.

As will Caira and O'Donnell, both of whom received three-year contract extensions in 1994, Caira in March, O'Donnell in December. The town's two chief administrators will again have their respective hands full as Wilmington and the rest of the world hurdles toward 2000.

Back to the present:

Christmas Trees in the trash

The Town of Wilmington will be collecting Christmas Trees at the curbside along with regular trash pickup. Residents should place the tree next to the regular trash.

During the weeks of December 26 and January 2, trash pickup is one day delayed due to the holidays.

A car in the driveway at the DeLuca residence on Salem Street was the recipient of a "Christmas tree" as a White Pine was felled by the storm on Christmas Eve. The car is crushed, but fortunately no one was in it.

Nomination papers available

Nomination papers are now available in the Town Clerk's office for Wilmington's Annual Town Election, April 15, 1995. Candidate openings are: Housing Authority for a term of three years; Shawsheen Regional Vocational School Committee for a term of three years; Wilmington School Committee for a term of three years and Wilmington Selectman for a term of three years. The papers must be picked up in person or by an agent bearing a letter authorizing the pick-up for the candidate. The clerk's office is open daily 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and will also be open Monday, January 9th 7:00 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Completed nomination papers must have fifty signatures of voters registered in Wilmington.

Safe stolen from gas station

by Jeff Nazzaro

Two men driving a Chevy Blazer heisted a small safe containing approximately $1,000 in cash from Forrest Mobil on Lowell Street Monday night, police said.

The theft occurred at around 10 p.m. when the men entered the back room and left with the roughly one-and-a-half by two foot safe while the attendant was busy with customers, according to Deputy Police Chief Bernard Nally.

The attendant "thought these two guys were just putting some radiator coolant in their car," Nally said.

Last month, thieves broke into Dom's Mobil station on Main Street and stole a similar safe containing between $3,000 and $3,500 but Nally said there was no known connection between the two robberies.

Shawsheen Tech offers a taste to 6th, 7th and 8th graders

Sixth, seventh and eighth grade students can learn about the job of a telecommunications technician, cosmetologist, electrician, carpenter, chef, draftsman, and graphic artist during "Project Overlook," a program that starts January 10 at Shawsheen Tech.

Application deadline is January 3, 1995 for students from Bedford, Burlington and the John Glenn Middle School in Billerica.

Students will meet Tuesdays and Wednesdays from 2:30 to 5 p.m. from January 10 through February 15. Transportation will be provided from their middle school to Shawsheen Tech and from Shawsheen to students' homes at the end of the day. During the six weeks, students will explore six vocational-technical programs from a list that includes Telecommunications, Carpentry, Electrical, Cosmetology, Electronics, Culinary Arts, Drafting, and Graphic Arts.

This popular program has attracted more than 350 students in the past says coordinator and ninth grade Guidance Counselor Mark Small. He said students should be encouraged to look at prospective careers "through their interests, not by looking at who is in the job, men or women." Small, who has interacted extensively with middle school audiences, said young people remain open to looking at choices based on interest through elementary school and junior high.

Applications are available at district middle schools from Bob Mecaldi at John Glenn, Anthony Russo at Marshall, or Louis Intoppa or Richard Carroll at Marshall Simonds or by calling Small at Shawsheen Tech at 508-667-2111 ext. 108.

A second session, for students from Tewksbury, Wilmington and the Locke School in Billerica will take place after spring break, starting April 25.

Wilmington High financial aid workshop January 9

The Wilmington High School Guidance Department will sponsor its second Financial Aid Workshop on Monday, January 9 (snow date January 10) from 7 to 9 p.m. in the high school cafeteria. Anthony DeLuca, public accountant and consultant will be the guest speaker. Mr. DeLuca will be available for specific questions and for assistance in completing the two financial aid forms. Parents may find it helpful to have completed draft copies for the workshop.

The Local Scholarship Application Form will be available during the meeting. Parents and students will have an opportunity to present questions regarding general and local scholarships to Mrs. Florence Athanasia, guidance person and Edward Woods, assistant principal. Financial aid forms and additional material will be available at that time. Parents of potential college bound students are also welcome.

For further information contact Florence Athanasia, 694-6068.

BUYING OR SELLING A BUSINESS

Changes in the new tax law affect the way the purchase price is allocated for tax purposes and thus the way assets are priced. For example, intangible assets that go with the business - including goodwill - can be amortized over 15 years. Previously, most were not deductible at all.

It's advisable to list all assets in the purchase contract and assign value to each in order to qualify what is depreciable, amortizable or deductible. This value is used to calculate deductions and the gain or loss when you dispose of the assets.

Whether the purchase covers individual assets (beneficial to the buyer) or its stock (better for the seller) is negotiable. Similarly, whether payments to the seller are characterized as compensation determines whether they are subject to Social Security tax. Negotiations will also cover installment sales to ease the seller's tax burden, ownership of the corporate shell and other issues.

Here's wishing you a happy and prosperous New Year!

Where tax issues come into the business picture, we should, too.

Captain Larz Nelson took a trip in to Boston to visit a Liberty Ship. Larz commanded several Liberty Ships during World War II. This one, The John Brown is one of only two still sailing. Larz immediately began pointing out differences between this ship and the ones he commanded. The first difference being that upon boarding he was asked for a contribution!

Fred Cain was one of the first to do business in the new Medford Savings Bank after it took over the Commercial Bank and Trust. Cain's father, Fred F. Cain was a founder of the Wilmington (Commercial) Bank and Trust in 1961. Cain said he would and has continued to bank with the Medford Savings Bank. (photo by Stu Neilson)

Adam McCauley, Mike Johnson and Buck Collings covered graves at Wilmington's Memorial Day observances. The Cub Scouts are members of Pack 136 and marched in the parade, too. That's Adam saluting as the name of the veteran whose grave he covered was called in the Honor Roll.

Officer Chip Bruce (Wilmington's DARE Officer) got a mild sunburn while working at "Crazy Crossroads" during the Wilmington Kiwanis Bicycle Safety Rodeo. Over 300 children attended the event. The Kiwanis Club is planning to hold it again on May 13, 1995.

1994 in Wilmington

Wilmington Ladder 1 responded to a general alarm at the abandoned Wilmington Ford building on Main Street July 1, 1994. Here it waits for further instructions alongside a Reading ladder truck as smoke billows from the burning structure. As 1995 comes around the building has been nearly completely torn down and awaits a new shopping center in its place. (photo by Jeff Nazzaro)

J & E SERVICES
Automotive Repairs / Snowplowing
619 Rear Main St., Wilmington
(508) 657-7950

If you're like most people, you're not replacing the family car as often as you used to. That may save you the expense of a new car, but having an older car often means more repairs and breakdowns.

J & E Services is a full-service automotive repair shop. Stan Hibbins, the General Manager, opened J & E Services three years ago, but he's been repairing cars for 30 years. At J & E they do the usual tune-ups and oil changes and exhaust systems, plus much more... they'll even rebuild your engine.

"When you take your car into a repair shop, it's easy to spend a lot of money," says Stan. "What gets fixed depends on how much you want to spend. Money is the bottom line."

Stan Hibbins and another mechanic check this car on the lift.

Stan will list and prioritize the repairs that are needed. He won't fix something if you don't want him to, but most of all, he won't fix what isn't broken.

At J & E, oil changes are $18.95 (plus tax) every day. Their "lifetime exhaust" isn't just a muffler, it's everything - from converter to tail pipe. Towing services are available. And, they offer gift certificates - a perfect gift for kids, parents, or anyone with a car!

J & E Services is located at 619 Rear Main St., Wilmington (behind Plate Escape). They're open M, T, Th, F: 8-8; W: 8-6; & Sat: 8-5. After hours, leave a message on the machine!

Judy Fittery of Tewksbury shows off a copy of a Christmas ornament she made and sent to the White House. Fittery, the president of the White Mountain Decorative Painters Guild, said her group made hundreds of ornaments nationwide for the season. The painted-wood ornament depicts "five golden rings," looped in a blue ribbon, from the Twelve Days of Christmas carol.

Local painters helped decorate our nation's Capital

More than 1,400 hand painted Christmas tree ornaments have been shipped to The White House, 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington, D.C. by the Society of Decorative Painters, including one by Tewksbury resident Judy Fittery.

These originally designed ornaments will decorate two trees in the White House. In addition, six of the Society's top painters submitted a variety of hand painted decorative pieces for use in Vice-President Gore's residence and are featured in the Christmas issue of Ladies Home Journal which appeared on newsstands November 15, 1994. The Society is also furnishing 125 hand painted tin heart ornaments for the Blair House Christmas tree. Blair House is the U.S. president's official guest house. For information about local artists and members of the Society, contact Judy Fittery, president of the White Mountain Decorative Painters Guild.

Society board of directors' member Rosemary Thigpen has been instrumental in putting these projects together. "The holiday season is a beautiful time and a wonderful opportunity to emphasize the importance of art in American life and education," said Thigpen. "We are especially honored and excited that two trees in the White House will be decorated with our ornaments. One tree will be near the Oval Office and the second will be displayed in a highly visible spot that will showcase the Society and some of its finest artists to approximately 150,000 visitors."

Donna Bryant Waterson, president of the Society, has hand painted a tree skirt that will add the finishing touch to the larger of the two White House trees. "Our decorative painters have spent many hours creating and painting their individual ornaments. We have many painters from all 50 states and several foreign countries who have contributed their talents to make the white House Christmas season truly unique and special," Bryant Waterson said.

The Society followed guidelines established by the White House and all the ornaments are four to eight inches high and weigh no more than six ounces. Five hundred and fifty ornaments use red as the dominant color and the balance are pastel in tone with silver and/or gold trim. The hand painted ornaments are made from a variety of mediums including tin, wood, glass and porcelain. All the ornaments have a gold cord hanger at least four inches long which includes an identification tag containing the name, address, and phone number of each artist.

For the second consecutive year, Society members were invited to paint tin hearts for a tree in the Blair House. "Last year was the first and probably only time we have asked for ornaments from any group. This year we are asking the Society to add to our collection."

The National Society of Tole and Decorative Painters, based in Newton, KS, brings together more than 30,000 decorative painters throughout the United States, Canada and 27 foreign countries. The Society has 227 affiliated chapters worldwide and offers both individual and individual/business associate memberships. The Society also publishes The Decorative Painter, the world's leading decorative painting magazine.

Wilmington senior topics

Year's nearly over

Next Sunday we welcome in 1995, while saying goodbye to 1994. Looking back on the year, we had the pleasure of registering a large number of seniors into our many programs. Sadly we mourned the loss of too many of our seniors whom we will miss.

With the help of many we met the needs of all. To those who gave our grateful thanks. The volunteers who came faithfully to instruct our activity programs week after week, asking for nothing but to make some seniors happy and healthy:

George Webster art teacher who has done a tremendous job. Tom Barrazzo, Henry Latta, Grace Kirkland and Mary Cunningham who work on the bingo game. Mary Valentino and Ruth Curtis, co-teachers in the craft class.

Carole Hulburt, ceramics teacher who produced many beautiful articles. Margaret Cavanaugh, dance teacher who has put together an excellent class that performed at many nursing homes and clubs. Jean Webster our nutrition instructor. This class in only a short time has helped many seniors to improve their health by staying on a proper diet.

Joe Filipowicz, machine shop instructor, helped seniors work with tools safely and effectively. Sing-a-long under the direction of Ruth Filipowicz.

Our thanks are also extended to others outside the Center who helped in many ways to meet the needs of the seniors. The town manager, finance committee and the taxpayers who approved and accepted our 1994 budget.

Minuteman Home Care for services to our homebound, with homemakers, day care, protective services, elders at risk of hurting themselves or others, elders being abused, legal services and meals on wheels when our schools are closed.

Community Teamwork fuel for low income seniors, weatherization, and oil burners replaced or repaired. Tewksbury/Wilmington Elks for the donation of their yearly holiday dinner dance, Department of Elder Affairs for approving our formula grant to continue our Outreach Program. The Lions Club and Analog Devices for paying two of our shutin holiday catered dinners for 100 seniors on each holiday. Maple Meadow Gardens for donating the Christmas Tree. The Rotary and Kiwanis Club for their monthly donations to financial needy seniors unable to pay a utility or medicine bill.

Several churches and the Community Fund for their help. And let us not forget the seniors who donated hundreds of hours helping seniors confined to their homes in failing health, or lonely and depressed on the loss of a loved one, giving comfort to all.

Also the many seniors who spent several days a week visiting seniors in nursing homes and hospitals with no family members able to be with them. A thanks to all who contributed in any way in helping us reach our goal of meeting the needs of all our seniors.

Starting in January 1995 every Tuesday Shawsheen Tech will be offering a Seniors Beauty Day. It will entitle a senior citizen to receive a shampoo cut and set along with a dinner in the school restaurant for a cost of $10. You will have to be at the school by 8 a.m. and as the students will be performing the work, only eight seniors a week can be served. Please call the director if you would like to take advantage of this discounted price.

Kivlehan leads team as K of C Champions

by James Pote
How ironic. Before last year's Wilmington High School basketball season got underway, the Wildcats were predicted to finish at the top of the Merrimack Valley Small School Conference. They finished the season with four total wins. This year, the team was predicted to finish at the bottom and now they have already equaled their win total from last year. How ironic.

On Tuesday night, in the championship match of the Knights of Columbus Annual Christmas Tournament, Wilmington met up with Pope John from Everett - they escaped with a non-stop battle with WHS coming out as champs with a 53-48 victory.

Before this season had started, head coach Jim McCune had predicted that his starting shooting guard Dan Kivlehan would be able to play with the best of the guards in the MVC. He hit the nail right on the head.

Monday night, Dan helped his teammates out with 27 points in the 73-65 win over North Reading in the opening round of the tournament. And on Tuesday night he popped in 24 points which earned him recognition as the tournament M.V.P.

"Dave has proven me right. I hope these two games can do wonders for him. He is playing great right now and hopefully he can keep it up," said McCune.

"But, it's not just him. Dave DeSantis and Doug Olander are doing great jobs bringing the ball up and passing it off to him," McCune continued.

McCune is indeed absolutely correct. Even though Kivlehan is major part of the team's offense, it has been nothing but a complete team effort. From the jamboree until now, this team has taken a major leap in improvement. They hope they can improve on their 4-1 record when they start to take on fellow MVC opponents.

"Right now we are playing very well. We are proving that we have as good as programs as any other program. But, we have to step it up even more against [MVC] teams," McCune said.

Against Pope John, the team had one major force to reckon with: Jeremy Goldberg. Remember that name. Of his team's 48 points, Goldberg walked away with 35 of them. That's 73 percent of the team's offense. Not bad.

"He [Goldberg] is by far the best player we have gone up against thus far. He is just unbelievable," stated McCune.

For the other side of the coin, McCune couldn't ask for anything more from many of his players. Whether it was diving for a loose ball or making the great pass (in which there were many of those) or just making the right shot decision, his players gave McCune everything they had in this tournament.

Hopefully, they haven't ran out of gas.

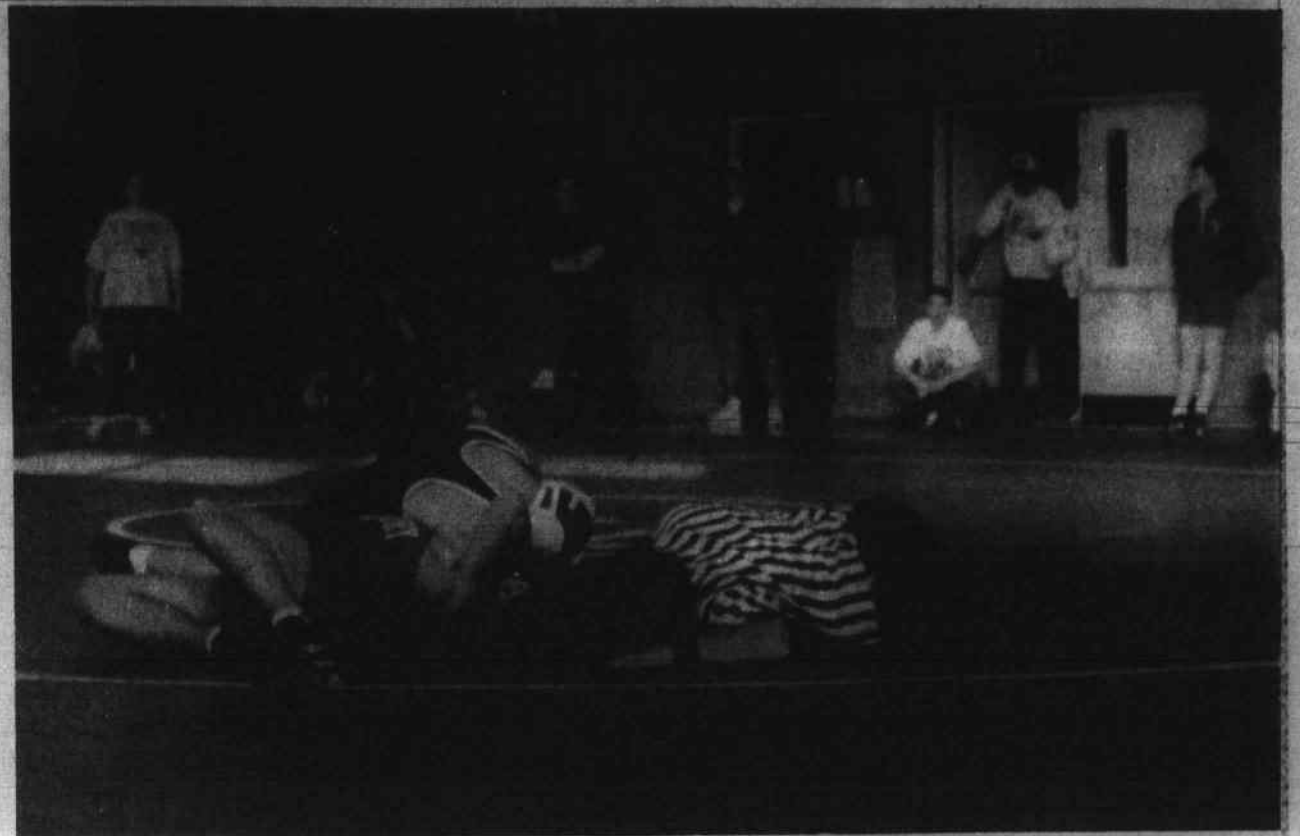

"We had more time tonight to relax offensively. We were very patient and our shot selection was just great. We didn't rush, we took our time and again the shots were great and at the right times."

At halftime, Wilmington had a comfortable 21-15 lead. Kivlehan was leading the team with eight points and everything seemed to be in sink for the team - most especially their defense, who held their opponent to just three field goals.

The defense carried their momentum into a little more than half way through the second half, where they slipped a little allowing the Tigers to tie the game up at 33 with six and half minutes left in the game.

Wilmington was able to push their lead up to six points with two minutes left on the scoreboard until a Goldberg three pointer and two free throws (separate plays) put the lead back to one point. With Kivlehan hitting two free throws of his own to put the lead back up to three points, Doug Olander finished it out with his own two free throws for the five point win.

After Kivlehan's 24 points, Olander was second with eight followed by Bruno with seven, and DeSantis and freshmen Scott Swierzynski with four points each. Bruno led the way on the boards with eleven with Olander behind him with six. Overall it was a complete effort.

"Dave Caccamesi was ferocious out there. He really played well. And Paul Bruno is a dog out there he is so aggressive. Everyone played great," McCune said with a smile.

The team now has a week to enjoy this championship trophy as they will take on Andover next Tuesday night.

Leaps and bounds for wrestling team

by James Pote
First it was inch by inch. Now it is step by step. And the next two years it will be leap by leap. That has been the trend for the Wilmington High School wrestling team.

Just this past Friday, the team traveled to Tyngsboro, where they took on that team along with Lynnfield and Wakefield. Wilmington beat Lynnfield and Tyngsboro before losing to Wakefield to come out of the tourney with two big team "W's."

On Tuesday afternoon, the successful journey continued as Wilmington made a pit stop at Tewksbury High School to take on the Redmen. Despite forfeiting five weight class matches, Wilmington ended in a deadlock tie at 36 points each.

"I'm really happy with what I saw today. The kids really did very well today. I'm really proud," said head coach Mike Pimental.

Strangely enough in this meet, all of the matches were decided by pins rather than any decided by points.

Starting the match, both teams had to forfeit their 103 weight class match. At the 112 match, Billy Tate pinned Ryan Donovan to get things rolling on the right foot for the Wildcats.

At the 119, Doug Costa pinned Ford Ennis and at the 125 Tom Cassella continued the trend with a pin of his own. In the 130 match, Joe McHale pinned Shawn Sullivan.

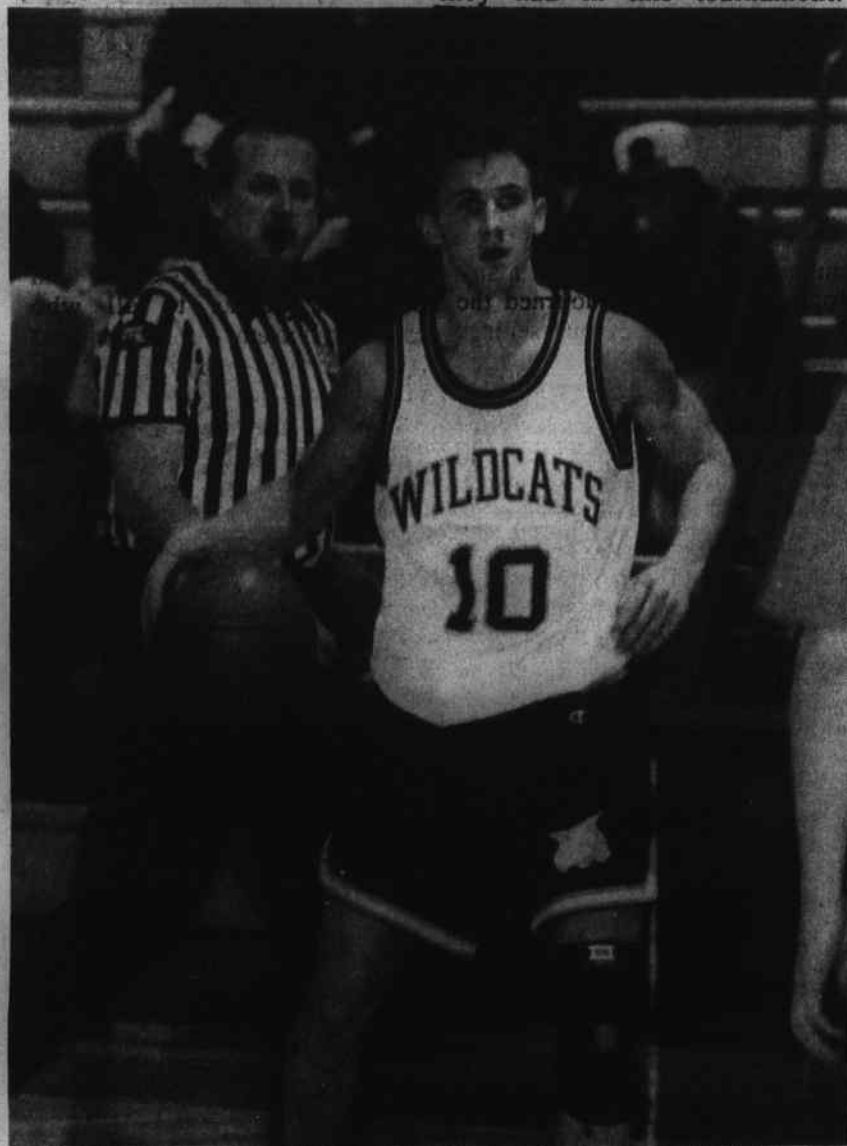

To carry on the morning match, Wilmington suffered a little blow when Billy Harrison was pinned late in the third period and then they had to forfeit the 140 pound match.

Steve Ritucci impressively pinned his opponent Jeff Donovan in the second period before Mike MacDonald was pinned in the 152 pound weight class despite coming inches away from winning the match at the end of the first period.

Freshmen Jamie Campbell won by forfeit in the 160 pound weight match before Sean Kerrigan was pinned in the 171 division. The next three matches the 175, 189 and heavyweight all were forfeited by Wilmington and therefore the match was a tie.

The WHS Boys Basketball Cheerleading Squad had plenty to cheer about in the annual K of C Christmas Tournament, Allyson Murray and Colleen Stokes (who blinked) were on hand and in the cheering as the boys team beat Pope John in the championship round on Tuesday evening. (photo by Dan Bates, Jr.)

CO-INSURANCE
QUESTION: What is meant by co-insurance?
ANSWER: The concept of co-insurance can be summed up very simply. It means the property owner will carry insurance up to a certain percentage of the value of his property, usually 80%. He gets a reduced rate for this.
 In other words, if $100,000 of inventory is insured for $80,000 (considered full insurance), a loss of $20,000 would be paid in full. If the same $100,000 inventory was insured for only $40,000 (consider 50% coverage), then the same $20,000 loss would receive only 50% coverage. The co-insurance clause is usually offered on commercial and business properties.

Girls lose in championship

by James Pote
 Usually the number 13 is unlucky to most people. But in the Wilmington High School girls basketball team their unlucky number is 29.

Against Gloucester a few weeks ago, the girls had fumbled in which they turned the ball over 29 times, which gave Gloucester the win even though the Wildcats could have, should have and would have - come up with the win.

On Tuesday afternoon, the girls were in the championship game in the annual Coca-Cola basketball Christmas Tournament against Lynnfield. A scenario which is familiar as the Pioneers won the tourney last year against Wilmington.

But, in the 51-36 loss, it was again turnovers which cost the team another victory. The same unlucky number dialed the Cats tone - that is old number 29.

"You cannot win any games when you turn the ball over 29 times. We just didn't play well," said head coach Jim Tildsley.

Tildsley also said the team averages 45 rebounds a game and against Lynnfield - they managed to pull down just 21. But, it wasn't just the turnovers and the lack of the team playing well - it was their shots and the lack of them.

"The ball wouldn't fall in a ocean for us tonight. I was impressed with them [Lynnfield]. They could shoot, rebound and they didn't turn the ball over. Our press wasn't effective and we have a lot of work to do."

All Tournament M.V.P. Melissa Eckman was a stand out against Wilmington which gave more than Tildsley a headache. The point guard finished with 21 of the team's 51 points.

"She surely is a great player."

Leading the way in points for the team were all tournament selections Leanne Harris with 14 points and Erin Falzone with nine impressive points coming off the bench.

Also playing well were seniors Nancy Pote and Jacqui Holloway.

"I thought Erin had a real good game," Tildsley said.

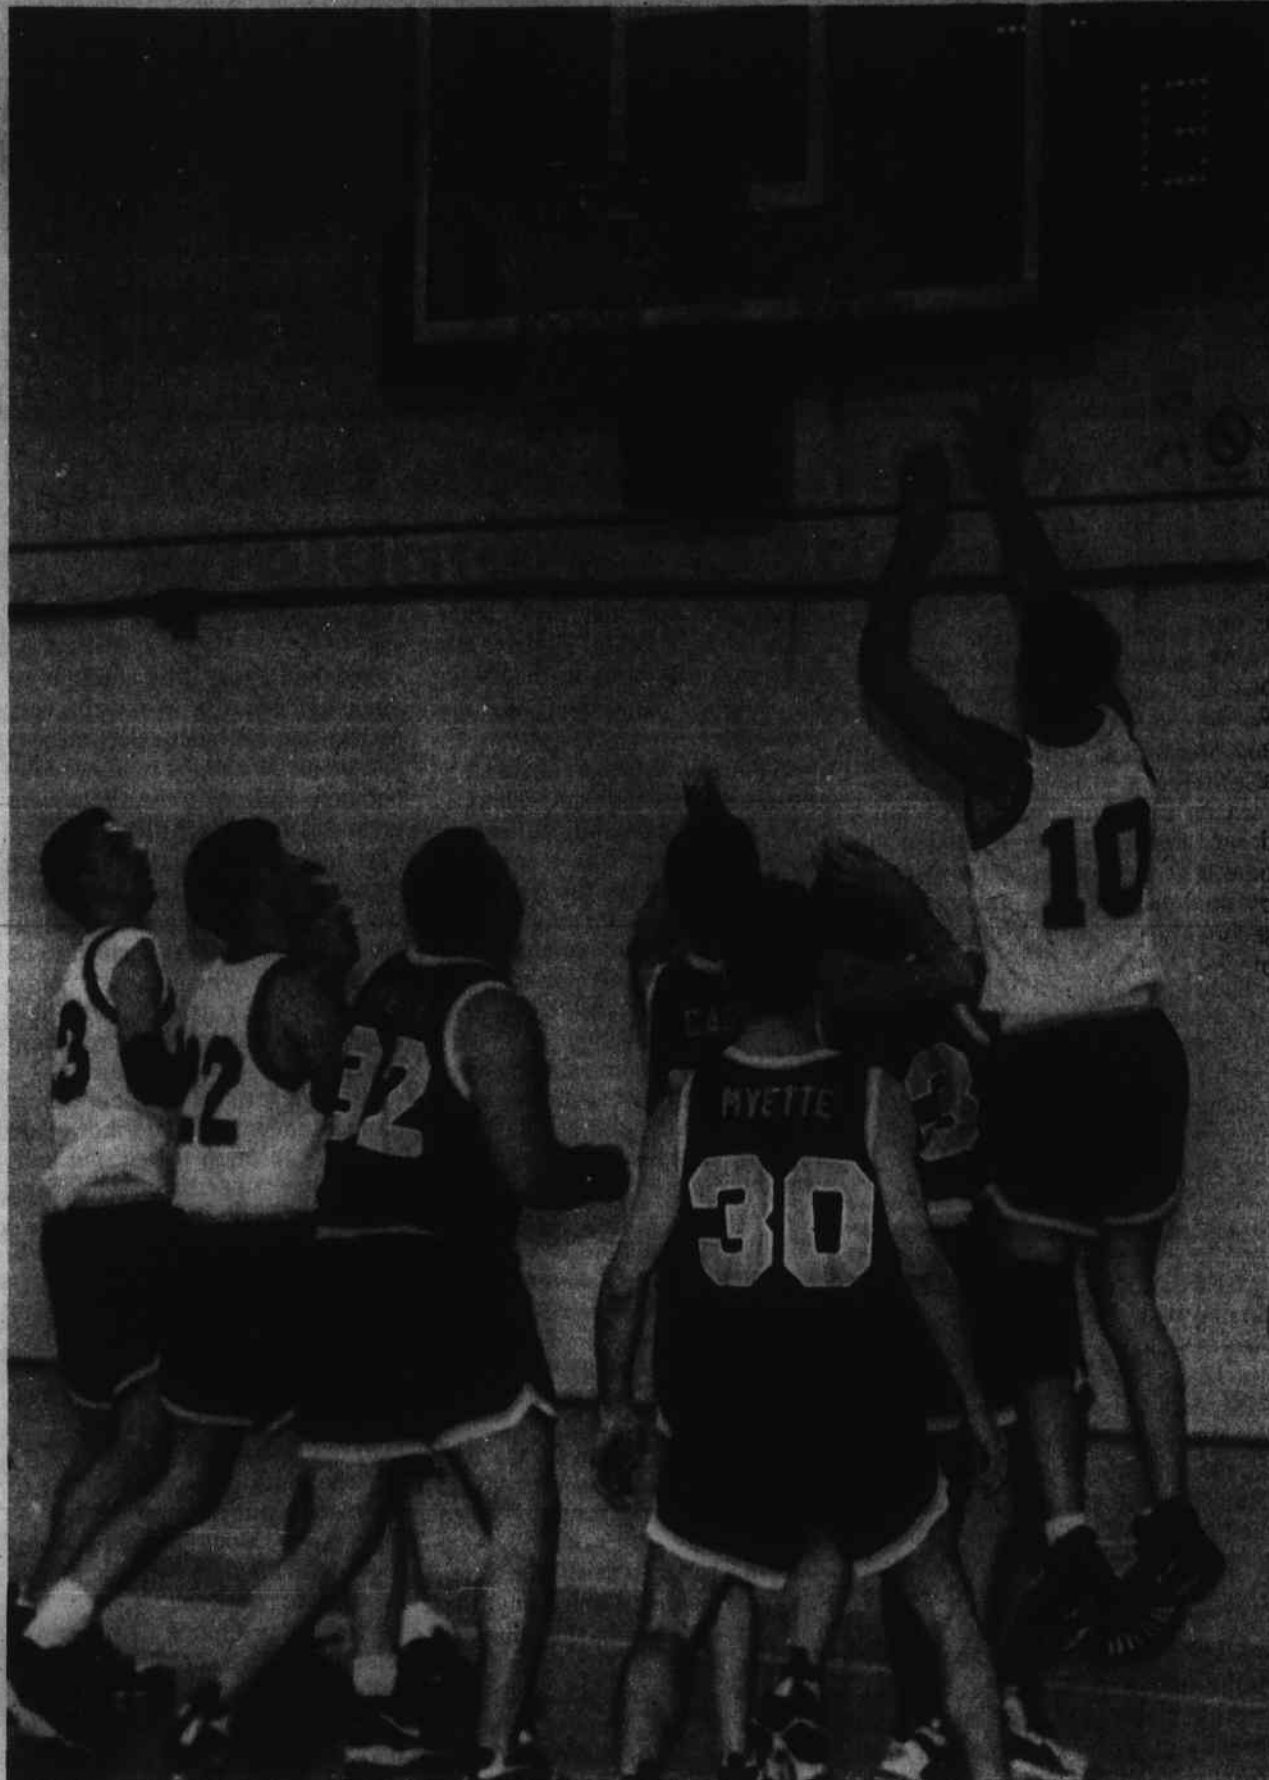

In the first round of action, the Lady Wildcats took on Pope John from Everett where they pulled out a 37-30, low scoring win.

In the first half, Wilmington was led by a foursome of scorers who had four points each in the 23-14 score at halftime. Erin Falzone, Renee Vachon and Rebecca Rogers all came off the bench to lead the way in scoring, while Jacqui Holloway was the lone starter with four points.

Rogers however, continued the trend into the second half where she continued to show a lot of promise and a lot of talent. The lone freshmen on the team, finished the night with six points in limited action.

Also in the second half, Falzone netted four more points to lead the team with eight overall. Leanne Harris on the other hand finished up with two points and a team leading ten rebounds.

Next up for the Wildcats is a non-league battle against Bedford at home Friday night. Bedford is real strong and Tildsley realizes they will give the 4-2 Cats a battle.

"We definitely have our work cut out for us against Bedford. They are a real good team."

Youth basketball dance

Wilmington's Youth Basketball Association will sponsor fund-raising dances Friday, January 6 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Shawsheen Elementary School; and from 7 to 10 p.m. at the North Intermediate School. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

The race is getting tighter

by Don Ahern
 The Wilmington Adult Hockey race is getting tighter! Thursday's games had Red Team beating Golden State 6-3 with high scorer Bob Higgins with a hat trick.

Some nights have Golden State as a productive team, but not on this night!

The second game had the White Knights over the Chiefs 5-2. Captain Chris Houde is still out with a broken shoulder. High scorer was the very powerful right winger Gerald Bradanese.

Some people say Gerry somewhat looks and plays like Cam Neely. I guess some people really know the game....not!

Friday's game, the surging Ice Hog's beat the Blueliners 5-4, it's a very good chance that the Ice Hogs could possibly make the playoffs; they are 5-1-1 in their last seven games.

Finally Friday's last game was played with the Outlaws against Team 8 with the better of the two teams winning; Team 8 with a 3-2 victory. That makes the Outlaws record 2-4-1 in the last seven games and look who's right behind them, the White Knights with a record at 10-5-0. I believe the next time they play it's for first place.

Standings as of 12/23

Outlaws	11-4-1
White Knights	10-5-0
Blueliners	8-6-1
Golden State	8-7-1
Red Team	6-8-2
Ice Hogs	6-8-1
Team 8	6-10-0

Morris, Torode lead Redmen as they fall short again

by James Pote
It's strangely enough that the Tewksbury High School boys basketball team has been playing solid defense and they have also been scoring over 50 points in every game. And they are 0-4.

On Tuesday night, their bad luck continued when they took on Masconomet in the second round of the Stoneham Christmas Tournament.

Just over a week ago, the team lost to Billerica by two points and against Masco it was the same story as they lost 55-53.

"We have been playing well but our lack of size really hurts us. We are having trouble rebounding and that's why we are where we are," said head coach Jeff Nelson.

At halftime, the Redmen were down by five points and at one time in the second half they trailed by nine and led by one. With 29 seconds left in the game and down by five, Mike Torode hit a trey (he finished with a team high 23 points) to put Tewksbury down by two.

Tewksbury then sent Masco to the line where they missed and Tewksbury then missed their field goal attempt and again sent Masco to the line where again they missed their one and one opportunity. With seconds remaining, Tewksbury was not able to pull off a last second heroic desperation shot.

Also playing well was Brian Morris who finished up with 20 points. Both Morris and Torode have combined for a fearsome pair as in this game they made up 81 percent of their team's offense.

On Monday night, the Redmen faced off against Bedford where they lost by a score of 62-51 despite being down by two points with a minute remaining on the clock. After a few free throws by Bedford and a few missed shots by Tewksbury, Bedford walked away with the victory.

Leading the way in that game was Morris with 20, Torode with 17 and sophomore forward Tony Amano with eight.

Don't forget to yell "Tim—berrrr!"

by Bill Conlon
I've set myself a long-range goal, and it's going to take some effort to accomplish it. Good. I'll need the exercise if I'm ever going to accept my brother's offer of elk hunting in the Colorado Rockies.

I had so much fun in my mother's garden this past summer that I want more! More room for spinach! A bigger potato patch! More broccoli! To make a bigger garden on my mother's land, however, means I've got to play lumberjack, and clear the land all the way to bare dirt. That's no mean feat, let me tell you! My new garden plot is now covered with small to medium oak, birch, poplar and maple, with a couple of white pines struggling for sunlight. Which means chainsaw work, and lots of it. The exercise is terrific, but all my effort so far has yet to make much of a dent in the job.

Felling a tree, if you've never had the pleasure, can be tricky. Now that the wood-burning season is here, it might be helpful to review some of the vagaries of woodcutting.

First and foremost, don't get all weepy about cutting down a tree, for criminy sake. This is New England, and trees will grow on any patch of dirt that isn't regularly tended. Pick the trees you want to save, then be ruthless with the rest.

To down a tree, first pick which direction you want the tree to fall. If it lands on the toolshed, or the cable TV wires, somebody might make an unfavorable comment, so choose the drop zone carefully. Oh, and do pay attention to the height of the tree. If the tree is ten feet longer than the landing area, you might have to tell Uncle Zed something sad about his new pickup truck.

One cut should be made, perhaps half-way through, on the side facing the direction you want the tree to fall. A second cut is made above the first, on the opposite side of the tree, then get ready to jump! Sometimes a wedge needs to be taken out of the "down" side, with thicker trees.

If you insist, go ahead and holler "TIM-BERRRRR!" (I do!)

A tree, however, might decide to go in a different direction, if there is a twist in the trunk, obstructing and blocking branches from other trees, or a stiff wind. You'll get a feel for it soon enough, hopefully before the clothesline has an accident.

Once a tree is downed, it has to be "brushed" or cleared of limbs. Cut off the limbs pointing up, first, and save the limbs that hold up the trunk for later. It's no fun at all to cut off a branch, only to have the trunk land on your foot.

Bigger branches can be cut into burning-sized pieces, but expect to produce an enormous pile of brush and twigs from each tree. Save a trash-can full of smaller twigs for kindling, but you'll still have all too much brush left when you're done. (You can burn in the spring, but it's necessary to check with the local fire brigade first.)

Once stripped of limbs, the trunk can be carved into appropriate sizes for burning. Thicker pieces need a bop from the splitting maul to dry quicker, but the small ones will burn nicely, if dry. And there's the rub.

Wood cut now is good for burning next winter. It might burn around March, but don't count on it. In the pioneer days, they'd cut around the trunk of a tree ("girdle" it) and let it dry upright before cutting down the trunk itself. Unless your neighbors don't mind the Addams Family look in their neighborhood, stick to the stack-and-dry method.

Wood cut during winter is quicker to dry than summer wood, and for a good reason. The tree sends its sap to the roots in the fall, to avoid the danger of freezing and cracking the trunk, leaving relatively dry wood. Still, that wood won't be ready for a long time, so don't expect to chop down that maple and have a winter's supply of firewood. You will, but it will be next winter's supply.

Wood should be stacked in such a way as to allow air circulation, and a plastic tarp over the top (but not an airtight wrap) is helpful to keep off the rain. The wood will accumulate bugs, so you want to leave the wood outside until it's needed. And that is the basis of an old New Englander's puzzle: Where should you store the wood so that it's far enough to keep the termites out of your rafters, yet close enough so you won't have to trudge a half-mile through the snow to get an armload, yet doesn't make your house look like the Beverly Hillbillies live there? Good luck!

For heating an average-size home, expect to use at least six cords worth of wood for a normal winter. More if it's a cold winter, more if you've got a big house, and more still if you pick lousy wood, like pine or poplar instead of long-burning hardwoods such as oak and maple.

As for me, this wood will warm me twice -- once while I'm cutting it and a second time when I stuff the logs into the woodstove and sit back to warm my bones beside the fire.

Well, time to gas up the chainsaw once again, slip on the gloves, and get back to work.

Tim- BERRRRR!

O Most beautiful Flower of Mount Carmel,
Fruitful Vine, Splendour of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate
Virgin, assist me in this my necessity. O
Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my Mother.
O Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart, to succour me in this necessity; there are none that can withstand your power.
O, show me herein you are my Mother. O
Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to Thee. (3 times)
Sweet Mother, I place this cause in your hands. (3 times)

Fertility Center of New England baby reunion

The seventh annual Christmas Baby Party Reunion, sponsored by the Fertility Center of New England of Reading, was held Saturday, December 10, at the Colonial Hilton Restaurant in Lynnfield.

The children at this special reunion have one thing in common - their births were a result of state-of-the-art infertility treatment which Dr. Cardone and staff have provided to couples throughout the region for the past seven years. The children range in age from a few weeks to seven years. There were also several families at the party who have adopted. Adoption is another option offered to couples at the Center.

"We hold this reunion during the Christmas season because these families are very special; each child is truly a miracle - representing joy and love which is what the holiday season is all about," explains Dr. Cardone, Medical Director of the Fertility Center of New England, Inc.

Catholic Charities serves families

Close to 1,000 helping hands reached out to families in need when 500 supporters of Catholic Charities/North gathered at an Old-Fashioned Christmas Party December 1 at the Danversport Yacht Club. For them, the gala festivities, highlighting the opening of the Christmas season in this area, were still imbued with the reality that this holiday period will not be a happy one for many vulnerable and disadvantaged children and families.

Proceeds from the party are targeted for Catholic Charities/

North's program to empower families to lift themselves out of poverty, homelessness, and dysfunctional relationships and into happy and productive lives.

The evening featured a night-long visit from Santa Claus, sit-down dinner, entertainment, dancing and a silent auction offering tickets for concerts, sporting events, and getaways, collectibles, artwork, jewelry, and 12 brightly lit miniature Christmas trees, each uniquely decorated around a holiday theme.

Cancer program approved

The Commission on Cancer of the American College of Surgeons has granted three-year approval to the cancer program at New England Memorial Hospital.

Established by the American College of Surgeons in 1932, the Approvals Program encourages participants to equip and staff themselves so that they are able to provide the best in the diagnosis and treatment of cancer. Recognizing that cancer is a complex group of diseases, the program promotes consultation among surgeons, medical oncologists, radiation oncologists, diagnostic radiologists, pathologists, and other cancer specialists. The multidisciplinary cooperation results in improved patient care.

The American Cancer Society estimates that 1,208,000 cases of cancer will be diagnosed in the United States in 1994. Slightly more than one-fifth of the country's hospitals have approved cancer programs, and over 80 percent of patients who are newly diagnosed with cancer are treated in these hospitals.

Wilmington firemen now use "confined space rescue"

The Wilmington Fire Department has added "confined space rescue" to its already impressive array of talents, thanks in large part to Zeneca Resins.

The Zeneca Resins facility on Main Street was the site of an unusual training exercise recently for fire department personnel when they learned this valuable skill from Massachusetts Fire Academy instructors.

Taking advantage of the company's facilities, 10 members of the Wilmington fire department, along with representatives of the Woburn and Lawrence departments, learned first-hand the skills required to rescue people stuck in confined spaces like storage tanks and pipes.

The training included a full day of classroom instruction, followed by a second day performing mock rescues in Zeneca Resins facilities, which included an empty storage tank and an underground storage pit. One staged rescue involved a four-foot culvert pipe supplied for the event by the Wilmington town highway department.

Moe Bechard, Manager for Safety Health and Environment at Zeneca Resins, planned and hosted the event. He worked closely with Chief Daniel R. Stewart and Alan Shafner from Ametek, another Wilmington industrial company, to coordinate the training exercise. Raffi & Swanson, another Wilmington-based company, also participated.

According to Bechard, the event was driven by a realization that, in the unlikely event of a worker becoming trapped and possibly injured in a confined space, a quick and safe rescue would be difficult, given the skill base of local rescue personnel. He and Shafner approached Chief Stewart with the idea of hosting the training and received enthusiastic support.

Directly as a result of the exercise, Chief Stewart will draw up a list of equipment and apparatus needed for confined space rescue, and will discuss with local industry their possible funding of its purchase.

About The Towns

It's New Year's - make a reservation

Make 'new year' reservations now

The Stoneham Library is talking space reservations for the spring, summer and fall of 1995. Artists, collectors and hobbyists who would be interested in exhibiting work for a one-month period should contact reference librarian Maureen Saltzman at (617) 438-1324.

Speakers anonymous

"Who may speak at public meetings" is the subject of a chart in the Lynnfield "Villager" which provides the following information on the difference between open meetings and public hearings.

An open meeting of any town board or committee may be attended by anyone, but speakers must be recognized by the chairman. Attendees can be prevented from speaking and are ruled "out of order" if they speak without recognition by the chairman.

Public hearings may be held by any town board or committee and must be advertised in the town or county newspaper. Anyone may attend and anyone may speak "when duly recognized by the board or committee's chairman." A person, according to the "Villager," cannot be prevented from speaking "although the chairman may limit the length of your comments and the number of times you speak."

Pre-adoptive parents learn parenting skills

Attend a parenting class and learn how to care for a newborn. Topics include basic baby care, parenting tips and concerns, and when to call a pediatrician or any topic of interest to local parents.

To set up a private class, please call the Winchester Hospital Education Specialist. Sessions are $80 and additional classes in Infant/CPR and First Aid classes are available. For more information, call (617) 756-2220.

Applebee's finds a Home

Applebee's Grill and Bar has presented preliminary plans to the Tewksbury Planning Board for a building to the right side of the main entrance on one of two outlying parcels of the Home Depot site, according to the Tewksbury edition of the "Town Crier."

There is no tenant yet for the second site, and Wal-Mart, further up Main Street and still tied up in court, also has two outlying parcels.

Plans call for a red brick building with 6,165 square feet of floor space on a concrete pad, with a sidewalk on Main Street; red, white and green awnings; an illuminated sign; a footpath to the sidewalk; stop signs to control traffic between the Applebee's lot and Home Depot; and 105 parking spaces.

Wakefield spends $225,000

"The apparatus in the department is older than one-third of the firefighters in the department," said Wakefield Fire Chief Parr, commenting in the Wakefield edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle" on the Special Town Meeting which approved a $225,000 expenditure for a new pumper. The pumper will replace the antiquated 1956 Mack engine and provide back-up for the 1975 Maxim pumper.

The National Fire Protection Association and the Fire Insurance Underwriters recommend fire apparatus be replaced, after 15 years of first-line service and 20 years of reserve service.

BJ's in the spring?

The projected opening of BJ's Wholesale Club off Cedar Street in East Woburn is set for April or May, according to Attorney Charles Houghton, who is representing the land owner, and according to the Woburn edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

Although the property is actually in Stoneham, it can be accessed only through Woburn roads. Because of its possible impact on traffic congestion in Woburn, the City of Woburn and Cummings Properties appealed the approvals of the Stoneham Zoning Board of Appeals, Planning Board and Selectmen. Those lawsuits, later dismissed by the city and dropped by Cummings, have caused a delay in BJ's original November 1994 projected opening.

Nursing home next year?

Representatives of the proposed nursing home adjacent to

New England Memorial Hospital came one step closer to town approval when the Stoneham Zoning Board of Appeals granted three variances recently for the $6 million plan, according to the "Stoneham Independent." Selectmen must approve the four-story project before the 11-month construction period can begin this spring. Attorney Charles Houghton is representing both the hospital and the nursing home owner.

Go through the proper channel

BCAT in Burlington has been designated Burlington's school and educational channel.

As such, Channel 30 will list all no-school and delayed opening announcements as well as school-related information like student of the month, PTO news, lunch schedules, special student awards and activities, and meetings. Current instructional programming and student- or faculty-produced shows will also be shown.

All school news should be sent to BCAT at Burlington High or faxed to the station at 270-9199.

School councils in full swing

The Lynnfield High "School Council" has elected community representative Sue Polansky co-chair for the second consecutive year.

Council members include Pam Scantalides, Ernie Wonka, Polansky, Kris Benson, Joan Gallagher, and Nick Iudiciani. The council agenda includes such matters as progress on the school budget, anticipated increases in students, reductions in staff due to attrition during the past few years, and the state-mandated school improvement plan.

According to high school principal Benson, 3.4 new staff members should be enough to maintain class size quality.

Be a Celtic for a night

The Boston Celtics and Reading's Coolidge Middle School are offering one lucky raffle winner - in grades six through 12 only - the opportunity to join the Celtics for the evening of January 27th as ball-boy or ballgirl.

Raffle tickets are available at $6 for one ticket, $10 for two, through Coolidge students or through the school office at (617)942-9156. The winner will also receive two "premier" guest tickets for the 27th, a Celtics warm-up jacket, and a photo session.

As fundraisers go, this one sounds like a winner - thanks to the combined creativity of the Coolidge Parent Advisory Council, Coolidge Interim Principal Lou Adreani and Coolidge Interim Assistant Principal John Doherty.

Winchester at the Wang

Of the 50 student art exhibitors featured in the Wang Center's Young at Arts seventh annual exhibit, six are from Winchester.

They are Matt Alford, 11th grade, Winchester High School, for "Peer Pressure"; Colin

Barden, eighth grade, McCall Middle School, for "Hopes Over Fears"; Julie Bourget, 11th grade, Winchester High, for "The Crucifixion of the Dove"; Maie Bushnell, Winchester High senior, for "Negotiation"; Alison Vacovec, Winchester High junior, for "Eve's Perfect Adam"; and Matt Von Merino, eighth grader at McCall, for "Laughing in the Dark."

Burlington is also represented at the Wang. Exhibitors, chosen from almost 1,200 entries, were evaluated by a panel of judges on originality, creativity, and the interpretation of this year's theme, "Hopes and Fear."

The meter was the message

Some 50 Woburn Joyce Middle School science students

recently experienced electrical safety, from far enough away; and a mix of business, education and pleasure, in a hands-on way.

Boston Edison's Meter Department representatives gave a presentation to Alice Doherty's students on such activities as changing fuses and resetting circuit breakers. The presentation also included dressing as an electrical worker and how to approach a person "in shock." The demo of present and future technology included a replica of an antique electrical meter and a lesson on how to read meters electronically from either a mobile van or an office in the Prudential Tower in Boston.

Not on the agenda: future shock.

MOVIES

"Speechless", Short Takes

Cuddly and pleasant, "Speechless" is a happy little movie meant to remind us of old-fashioned romantic comedies. Although a little too soft at the core to be truly memorable, it does provide a pleasant diversion as it glides along.

Geena Davis is an idealistic speechwriter for a democratic senatorial candidate. Michael Keaton is a television writer who picks up a gig writing for the same campaign, only for the republican player. He's less devoted to politics, but extremely serious about writing. She thinks she's helping to change the world.

Insomniacs who meet over a box of Nytol, these two are obviously intrigued by one another. Fiercely competitive and afraid of fraternizing with "the enemy," both lie about their professions. Davis claims to be a reporter, Keaton says he's still scribbling sit-coms. Of course, their fibs set off a chain reaction in what quickly becomes a love/hate relationship.

With the exception of some salty language, this script could have waltzed right out of the 1940s. Missing, however, is the worldly, whiz-bang dialogue that was both cutting and funny in those old flicks. Director Ron Underwood simply hasn't the sense of rhythm that made Frank Capra, Preston Sturges, or Howard Hawks such deft comedic maestros.

Writer Robert King edges close to real laughs when poking fun at campaigning and the media. The "boys on the bus" who follow the campaign are cynical stooges, and the race becomes much more important than the issues. But the jokes never go for the jugular and Underwood's pacing is better matched to the romantic aspects of the film than the humorous.

And it is that romance which makes this movie smile. Both Davis and Keaton have sanded down their images for this flick. Normally more caustic, Davis is animated and remarkably deft at the physical comedy. Keaton's sense of timing, as usual, is impeccable. He quickly makes us forget the menacing, darker characters for which he's known.

Another throwback to those movies of yore is Christopher Reeve as Davis' on again/off again fiancée. A self-absorbed reporter who wears his war-torn flack jacket like a medal, Reeve fits perfectly into the role so often played by Ralph Bellamy. Strapping and successful, he makes all the right moves, but just doesn't understand true romance.

Though this flick echoes back to the Mary Matalin/James Carville romance of the 1992 Presidential election, it was supposedly written before that liaison became public. Wherever the idea originated, it is always intriguing to throw people into the same arena and tell them never to fraternize. Best of all, we know these two speechwriters are alike AND like one another - the fun part is watching them try not to admit it.

"Little Women" Starring Winona Ryder, Susan Sarandon, Trini Alvarado, Kirsten Dunst, Claire Danes, Christian Bale, Eric Stoltz, Gabriel Byrne, Samantha Mathis, Mary Wickes. Directed by Gillian Armstrong. Screenplay by Robin Swicord. Produced by Denise DiNovi. Rated PG.

We should all thank Gillian Armstrong for providing us with a little holiday magic. She has accomplished what most filmmakers with end-of-the-year releases only dream of: a movie classic.

Armstrong's rendering of "Little Women" makes all earlier versions pale in comparison. In fact, it will remind viewers why they loved Louisa May Alcott's book as children. Skeptics, gasping that nothing could improve on Katherine Hepburn's turn as Jo in the 1933 adaptation should note that this version is aesthetically pleasing, tightly edited, and superbly cast. It also captures the feminist spirit Alcott so deftly wove into her pre-feminist era novel.

Not that Armstrong undermines the story by including post-feminist kant into a Civil War era story. Two of the little women in the mostly-female March family are content with marriage and family. One, the sickly Beth, never makes any plans for herself. It is only Jo, played by a spirited Winona Ryder, who balks at her status as a second class citizen.

Of course, other versions never allowed for Marmee to be anything but a saint. Though she remains a devoted and caring mother, Susan Sarandon's performance and Robin

Swicord's clever script rather spice her up. Marmee certainly becomes piqued on a couple of occasions, but she has learned to work with her anger, and teaches her daughters to do the same. Sarandon's innate earthiness works beautifully for the story, as her Marmee is no longer a model of unattainable perfection, but a stout-hearted single mother to whom the audience can easily relate.

One of the film's strong points is the casting, as each actress brings remarkable individualism to this populated story. Ryder, petite and perky, seems to be physically straining against a society that wants to dress her up and shut her up. In her outspoken, clumsy and humorous manner, Ryder's Jo is both timeless and refreshingly vivacious.

Trini Alvarado brings poise and compassion to her role as the eldest sister, Meg. Claire Danes retains an otherworldliness as the sickly Beth without losing her humanism. Two actresses were cast as the self-centered Amy. Kirsten Dunst, fresh from "Interview with the Vampire," is quite funny as the youngest March so desperate for the earthly delights her sisters eschew. Samantha Mathis portrays the mature Amy with a dignified reserve warmed by kindness.

WEDNESDAY/THURSDAY, DECEMBER 28, 29, 1994-PAGE S-5

Armstrong wisely gave life to the men who circle these individualistic, and unusual, women. Christian Bale, Eric Stoltz and Gabriel Byrne play suitors we can care about. Each has a distinct personality, and it is clear why they are both attracted to, and attractive to, the March women. In other adaptations, the men are simply there, taking up space and displaying very little personality.

Alcott's Book is a fictionalized account of her own eccentric clan from Concord, Massachusetts. Kudos to production designer Jan Roelfs for creating the 1860's, complete with herbs drying in the kitchen, thick, erose manuscript papers, and vintage postage stamps. Costume designer Colleen Atwood worked miracles with materials and styles, displaying middle class modesty and elitist puffery at a glance.

Authentic-looking set dressings, locations and costumes are easily married to the rest of the film by Armstrong, who taught her cast to move easily within the intricate trappings of the 19th century. It is this eye for detail that will hopefully earn Armstrong an Oscar nod, as she richly deserves it for this witty and poignant film.
